

Thoughtline

June 2013

COMMUNITY MEDITATION MEETINGS

The Third of the Three Linked Festivals of Spring
Gemini, Friday, May 24, 2013 @ 8:30 pm

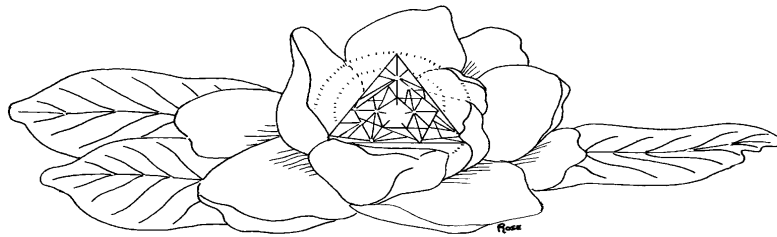

Note late start time for 9:26 pm exact time meditation

Cancer, Saturday, June 22, 2013 @ 7:45 pm

In this Issue

Cooperating With Cosmos

by Tom Carney

Workshops/Classes (To participate, please call to arrange a meeting)

- ▶ Building the Lighted Way - Sundays @ 9:00 AM
- ▶ White Magician Training - Tuesday Evenings @ 7:00 PM

Online Workshop/Class/Group Meditations (Please call to join)

- ▶ New and Full Moon meditations (To sign up for notices e-mail wezkuhl@gmail.com)

Group Meditation Work

May 9, 2013 through June 8, 2013

Light and revelation are cause and effect. The Rays And The Initiations P.74,5

June 9, 2013 through July 7, 2013

If the Earth were deprived of flowers, half of its vitality would disappear. Just as important is the snow, and like beacons of salvation stand the snowy mountains. Leaves of Morya's Garden 2 P.90

Arcana Workshops

Meeting Location:

3916 Sepulveda Blvd., Suite 107
Culver City, CA 90230

Mail Address:

P.O. Box 506
Manhattan Beach, CA 90267-0506

www.meditationtraining.org

webdisciple@meditationtraining.org

Phone 310-545-0910

Arcana Workshops is a non-profit tax exempt corporation. Donations are greatly appreciated and tax deductible

Cooperating With Cosmos

Recycling is an eternally existing Cosmic Principle. Recycling is just another, maybe updated, name for the ceaseless "movement" in Cosmos. Divine Motion or Recycling underlies the proposition that All there is is energy and energy cannot be "gotten rid of". "Things" which are dense manifestations of Energy, gradually emerge out of the No-Thing that is Energy into space and time where they become some-thing. According to the intention of the Will which impelled them, they follow a process of evolution, integration, and development into some form or other. They hang around for a period of time and then they disintegrate.

This cosmic scenario is observable literally everywhere. For example, it plays out over and over again in my garden. I have daffodils, tulips, roses, camellias, all kinds of weird succulents, like bear paws, stone plants, epiphyllums, cactus, lilies and so forth. All of these manifesting things come forth according to some form of inner algorithm, plan, or program and do their specifically designed thing for as long as they have been programmed to do it. Then they disintegrate and are recycled for next Spring or whenever they do it again.

On planet Earth alone, we are surrounded by billions upon trillions of observable examples of this Cosmic Principle of Recycling. However, this Principle is observable, not just on Planet Earth, but everywhere in Cosmos. Our astronomers have discovered galaxy size clouds of gas that are the wombs for the birth of stars and planets and even galaxies. And then there are the Stars that are "going nova" or exploding with unimaginable force, or one might say rapidly dis-integrating or recycling and creating those giant gas clouds out of which are emerging new galaxies, suns, solar systems planets and eventually the stuff that grows on them or, in our case, "crawls around in the folds of their crusts" and play out the little dramas we call life.

Recycling is the breath, the very rhythm of Cosmos. It is the eternal cycle of the unceasing movement of Cosmic Intention through Principle, Idea, thoughtform, development, manifestation, use or flowering and dis-integration, from its purest form of energy to its densest form and back.

Although it took untold billions of years for us to figure this out, it is a process which we are beginning to understand. The process is embodied in the Law of Right Human Relations. We are also beginning to understand that when we go along with Cosmic processes life is better for everyone. A major and extremely urgent insight to this Truth has been forced on us by our growing recognition of the terrible pollution we have wreaked on the Planet.

We all know about this pollution from the melting ice caps, to the Great Pacific Garbage Patch to The Gulf Oil disaster, to atomic waste leaking into ground water and poisoning people, and the unbreathable air in many of our major

When we go along with Cosmic processes, Life is better for everyone.

cities. Finally, we are beginning to act rationally about this crisis on many levels. Here is a local, and perhaps small in comparison to the Great Pacific Garbage Patch, however, solution wise, an exact parallel, and nonetheless significant example:

On the side of our house, tucked away from being seen from the street because they are deemed to be unsightly by the fellow inhabitants of my neighborhood, are three separate recycling containers. Each of these is capable of containing about 30 gallons of something. Each is a different color: Blue, Green, and Grey. While the material in all of these containers will, in one way or another, eventually be recycled by Cosmic Principle, the Blue container has been designated by the Collectors as the official "recycle" container for local human use.

The blue container is meant to hold certain kinds of discarded materials deemed to be recyclable and reusable in the very short term. These are things like cardboard boxes, glass and plastic bottles and cans, anything made of metal or cardboard or paper of some sort. The green container is for garden cuttings and vegetable waste, and the grey container is for most anything else. All community members, in an act of right human relations, cooperate in the placement of their recyclable discards in the proper container.

Just as the matter generated by an exploding star is reused to make new stars and so forth, the matter generated from this recycling process, is used to make new boxes, bottles, cans and so forth. However, there is a part about this Cosmic process that our fixated material point of view prevents us from recognizing and understanding. This view has to do with the part of the process that precedes the manifestation of things i.e., boxes, bottles, cans.

What we need to recognize is that before these items became the dense physical objects that we discard in the recycle containers, they were ideas. As idea, they were relatively formless images of an intention or need. Then, created by our will and intention, they became thoughtforms, or drawings of plans of how to "build" or "make" or cause them to manifest in the dense physical realm. The plans included the kinds of things, screw tops on bottles of soda for example, and the kinds of matter or material, glass, cardboard, and so on, that would be needed to actually enable the form to manifest or appear as willed and planned on the dense physical plane.

So, before they were bottles or boxes or cans they were energy. They were non-physical dense concepts. They were fields of coherent energy that had been imagined and organized from concept into images of the impulsive Will or intention. They were "Images of Truth".

The resulting bottles and boxes were constructed from some form of dense physical material. Just like dense physically existing suns and planets, this dense physical material of these boxes and cans can be "recycled". It can be ground up or dis-integrated into a form of matter that can be used again to manufacture or reincarnate other Ideas or Images of Principle or Energy, into new forms including new bottles, boxes, cans or whatever idea they embodied before they were dis-integrated and reconstructed.

Before these items became the dense physical objects that we discard in the recycle containers, they were ideas.

So, everything, every dense physical form, from a quark, or whatever infinitesimal hunk of matter, to bottles and cans, to the roses in my garden, to solar systems, galaxies, constellations that exists in Cosmos whether we know about them or not, is an effect or product of this process of recyclization.

And each of the uncountable variations of this process is in turn an effect, a product or manifestation of a thought-formed Idea. Each Idea, being an Image of a Principle is capable of being manifested in an uncountable diversity of forms. Creation knows no limits.

The forms are temporary, or mortal, you might say. The concepts that they embodied are not. The image or idea that the Ideas or Intentions which these forms embodied did not have to be re-imagined or re-thought. The forms, however, had to be remanufactured, either as duplications or reformulations in a variation of the Idea they embody. Think of the myriad shapes and sizes of boxes and bottles. Understanding this concept is essential to the understanding of the Cosmic process of Recyclization.

Each of the uncountable variations, from quarks to galaxies of this process is relatively unique. Although they all use essentially the same ingredients of matter, the design for each is somehow unique. This uniqueness of design accounts for the amazing diversity in the unity we call Cosmos. For example, every rose is a unique manifestation of an Idea, Flower. Flower is in turn a unique Idea or facet of the Cosmic Diamond or Principle which I can best name as Beauty. The number of facets of the Cosmic Diamond, Beauty, is uncountable.

What Power, or "hand or eye" is behind the infinite manifestation of incredible constantly unfolding diversity of the Cosmic Principle of Beauty is an intriguing question.

The Ageless Wisdom refers to the Cosmic Magnet. However, regardless of how we try to form the unformable, or name the unnamable the inescapable reality is that there is, as William Blake knew, some Power, some Will, some "immortal hand or eye" behind the framing of the infinite symmetry, behind the Cosmic Rhythm of harmonious recyclization.

The number of facets of the Cosmic Diamond, Beauty, is uncountable.

Well, hardly anyone with any sense at all will argue about this rhythmic process which is so obvious in both macro and micro Cosmos. When, however, it is pointed out that this cosmic process applies as well to human beings as it does to roses or cans, and is called reincarnation, one runs into all kinds of issues from total denial to the most absurd conclusions imaginable.

A lot of responsibility for this situation lies with the "esoteric or occult" communities. As Master D.K. has pointed out, "The presentation to the world of the thought [of reincarnation] by the average occult or theosophical exponent has been, on the whole, deplorable. It has been deplorable because it has been so unintelligently presented. The best that can be said is that they have familiarized the general public with the theory; had it, however, been more intelligently presented, it might have been more generally accepted in the West."

Problems and Absurdities

Among the most common absurdities that cling like crusty, ectoplasmic barnacles to the concept are those, put forth by the spin of Christian dogma which, just for starters, totally confuses reincarnation with the transmigration of souls, and holds that the souls of humans reincarnate as some form of lower animal like a dog or turtle. Another major problem that is still being presented to the public about this Cosmic Principle deals mostly with delving into one's past incarnations, finding out who one was in an earlier life or hooking one up with a dead loved one, and advising one on personal problems. This largely bogus practice marketed by "mediums", i.e., charlatans and con-artists preying upon the desires of the gullible and ignorant for the purpose of making money, casts a dark shroud over the multidimensional Reality in which we live.

In spite of the fact that we have the obvious dense physical evidence that the recycling of Life through matter is the basic rhythm of cosmos, and that we have all the ageless lore and wisdom that continually refers to our non-dense conscious existence, it is very hard to discuss the fact that this process is part of human life because we actually have little of what is called hard evidence to support the fact.

Unless or until the reality of a multidimensional Cosmos and the eternal process of the cycle of Creation from Energy into dense form and back as suggested above are recognized at least as scientifically possible, it will be very difficult for humanity to both accept and experience the fact of the Human Soul as an existing reality, and as the "Idea" that reincarnates through the dense form of a newborn child in the longish effort to create a form that is capable of manifesting the inner core of the Reality of which the Soul is the reincarnating Idea.

Physical Plane Instrumentation

In spite of the hard evidence of recyclization as a Cosmic process and of the passage of Life through forms in the vegetable, animal, and mineral kingdoms, it is, so far, not possible to document in the dense physical the existence of Soul. Efforts to obtain proof through the use of physical instruments that function on only the densest planes of the multidimensional Cosmos, such as measuring the weight of a human immediately before and after the point of death and offering as proof of the existence of Soul the tiny drop in weight that occurs, are not going to do it. Likewise, photographing auras has not made much of a dent in the physical scientist community.

Perhaps, as our ability to construct instruments that will detect the frequency or presence of the finer dimensions improves, this will alter. However, it is obvious that one will probably not look for or find what one thinks does not exist. So, before we can create such instruments, we will need to accept, at least the possibility, that Soul is Real, that Soul exists.

Since millions and millions of us over many, many centuries have testified in writing and speech that we have actually experienced the existence of Soul, the non-physical dense documentation of Soul is overwhelming. For the most part, this documentation comes from individuals who are respectable and sane members of all sorts of communities. True, there are many charlatans and manipulators who take advantage of the opportunity to claim to see or be something that cannot be seen and parlay that into making money. However, this fact is not a reason to reject as baseless, the testimony of other people who live respectable and practical lives.

Also, these millions will point out that in fact, we do not need to construct instruments to experience the Reality of Soul. We have spent eons in evolving the design and development of the instrument in which we live, our physical and etheric body, to do exactly this. The design of our dense physical and etheric equipment includes everything we need to register and have brain experience of the dimensions of the Real. It is necessary to keep repeating this fact.

These dimensions as mentioned above are coherent, harmonic Cosmic energy expressions of Truth or Beauty. They are literally other worlds. No external physical dense instrument, regardless of how sensitive we can make it, will ever compare with the current instrument in which we are all embodied. Even these instruments will not penetrate or provide entrance to these higher dimensions if we are out of balance or harmony with Cosmic Law and Beauty.

Meditation--the correct, scientific use of this equipment by the consciously focused and service dedicated, i.e., soul infused, personality who is in balance and harmony with Cosmic Law--is the only tool we need. Such integrated and dedicated personalities are in fact human beings who embody Souls who have evolved through many incarnations to the point where they understand and have to relative degrees mastered the skill and knowledge to bring this instrument of communication into a conscious receptive state. Once achieved this state brings one into harmony with these subtle dimensions and thus reveals to the resident in this equipment the reality not only of Soul but of the entire dominion of

The design of our dense physical and etheric equipment includes everything we need to register and have brain experience of the dimensions of the Real. It is necessary to keep repeating this fact.

Lives that exist in Cosmos.

Once again, meditation which is the correct, scientific use of this equipment by the consciously focused and service dedicated, i.e. soul infused, personality who is in balance and harmony with Cosmic Law, is the only way to gain actual brain experience of these higher dimensions. To develop this ability is the purpose of evolution. And as Master M has indicated, "...the current task in evolution [is] intercourse with distant worlds and the transformation of the Astral World, the world of the dark earthly survivals." Community, #14

Besides these many millions of individuals who have made this journey, who are engaged in this current task, and who attest to these dimensions as scientific facts, we also have the testimony of many, many individuals who have experienced actual recollections of past incarnations. The individuals who experience these previous life events are Souls who have returned or reincarnated in a new or different set of environmental circumstances, or "objective forms" with different vehicles or equipment to further their comprehension of and eventual mastery and correct use of their equipment. As the Ageless Wisdom points out, "Experience (of the pairs of opposites) comes from the inability of the soul to distinguish between the personal self and the Soul. The objective forms exist for the use and experience of the spiritual man. By meditation upon this arises the intuitive perception of the spiritual man." Yoga Sutras of Patanjali #35, P.239

The experiences that these individuals report are usually fragments of recollections from earlier incarnations. There exists even larger numbers of people who do not mention such experiences either because they do not recognize them for what they are or because such "reports" are routinely rejected as fabrications or delusions and not worthy of scientific consideration by the ignorant, the deniers of common sense, who wield the kinds of skepticism that closes doors and mires one in effects and data. These individuals are mainly the protectors of the status quo and the personal prestige and power which flows from that.

So, there is abundant non-dense documentation concerning the fact of reincarnation and Soul. Still, there exists a blanket denial of our non-material, conscious existence. The denial of even the possibility of these facts actually prevents most humans from grasping, understanding, and embracing the scientific fact of who, in reality, we are.

The most direct and easily implemented solution to this problem is the expansion and teaching of the science of meditation. Any rhythmically undertaken meditation that helps the individual to understand and scientifically use his or her equipment will unavoidably lead to the amazing realization that one is not one's body, that one is in fact a Soul in a body.

Starting with this realization, scientific meditation is the Key that will open the door to new worlds and to the Real.

Because of the ingrained and unconscious habits of our impressing on ourselves the illusion of a one dimension, purely dense physical reality in which all things are separated from all others, it would be best to initiate the teaching of scientific meditation in the elementary schools. It is quite possible for a four year old child to use the as yet still functioning imagination to begin to mentally experience, the still to them, integrated real world.

June, 2013
Tom Carney